“ Sue and I were Severy classmates, both of us graduating in 1955. I have many fond memories. One kind of silly one back in 5th/sixth grade is when the classroom was having a round of three day measles. Of course, we were out of school seven to ten days. Sue, Carl Henderson and I were on the same telephone line so we could all talk to each other just by picking up the phone at the same time. Being so bored, we had fun talking to each other like we were in a corner together.
I will miss knowing she is around, and will keep all of her family in my prayers.

“ Sue came into our lives about 11 years after Carmon's first wife, Doris, died of cancer. She didn't ry to insist on weaseling her way into our lives, but just showed love and support in many ways, patiently and with grace. It wasn't hard to start loving her, and to appreciate the ways she complemented him in her personality and actions, adding to his life in many ways. "Mama Sue" as we came to know her was feisty, energetic and fun to be around. Her love for everyone was sincere and infectious. Joann e and I will miss hearing her laugh rising above the background conversation in our gatherings, and receiving her hugs.
