“ I am so sorry for your loss. Losing someone in death is such a devastating experience. God does give us a hope. It is found at Acts 26:15 which says in part, "there is going to be a resurrection of both the righteous and the unrighteous." God promises to restore life to our dead loved ones and they will be with us again. May that beautiful hope bring comfort to your family during this difficult time.

“ Wayne, Keri, Lisa, Erica, and family...my deepest condolences go out to all of you. As some of you know, Peggy (aka, Wiggles) was very near and dear to my heart. We first met when working together at the law office back in the 80's. We often had long periods of time when we didn't have contact with each other, but when we did, we picked right back up as though no time had passed. Peggy was truly one of the most loving people I've ever known in my life. She never ended a visit with me or a text message to me without telling me she loved me, and I of course told her I loved her, too. Because I did. Very, very much! It's not often in life that you meet someone with a soul as kind as Peggy's and I feel blessed to have been loved by her. I got to see her for the first time in many years back in September of 2015 when I was in Chanute for work. We had the best time and soooo much laughter that day/evening! At one point, I think we were both scared we were going to wet our pants because we were laughing so hard! The last time I was in Chanute (a little over a year ago), she had already been diagnosed with cancer and had been through lots of treatments. I picked her up from work because she wasn't allowed to drive at that point, and we went to lunch. After lunch we went to her house and she and I sat and visited (with Wayne, of course!) for a couple of hours. I gave her a special little memento that was given to me when I was going through a rough time in my life. I cried when I gave it to her because I hoped and prayed that it would get her through her tough time like it got me through mine. I guess it did...for a little over a year anyway. I will never forget you, Wiggles, I truly believe that God put you in my life as a very special gift, because I cannot think of another person that loved as deeply as you did, nor who was loved by others so deeply. My guess is you are already with the brightest of all of the angels in heaven, because that is certainly where you belong. Rest in peace, my dear friend. I love you!

“ I have many childhood memories of Peggy on Sundays, playing with her and the cousins at Grandma and Grandpa Nordt’s. Lots of cousins, lots of fun. Then we grew up and I moved away, raising a family and being a mom, and I saw her less.

The past few years we reconnected on social media, and then this year I was able to be with her a couple of times, and I once again realized, as I had as a child, how sweet and loving and friendly and kind she still was, and how much she cared for all her family. I am so sorry to have to say goodbye to her but my life is better for having had her in it. Wishing her family comfort and peace—
Love, Connie and Dean Phillips
